Omicron COVID-19 variant & Booster Vaccinations

The NHS is working at extreme pace to respond to the new Covid-19 variant and planning the next and most complex phase of the successful Covid-19 vaccination programme.

Following updated guidance from the JCVI, the NHS will soon explain how the booster programme will be expanded – including how booster jabs will continue to be given in priority order so that the most vulnerable people are protected first, while also increasing capacity to vaccinate millions more people in a shorter space of time.

The NHS will contact you when you are due to book in for your booster vaccination, and when you receive your invitation, it's vital you book your appointment promptly.
